President's Message

Fugio (Latin: I Fly) is the caption on the obverse of the 1787 “Franklin” cent with another obverse legend “Mind Your Business” beneath a sun and sun dial. As the color-laden days of the Maryland autumn pass and another winter approaches, it seems to me as if the days are falling off the calendar as fast as the leaves off the trees. No matter how many irons I have in the fire at this time of year, I always take a leisurely and reflective break from “minding my business” to rake the sugar maple and oak leaves from the yard. Time does fly. After serving MSNA in this capacity for these past four seasons, I am definitely looking forward to another year serving as President.

This past year in MSNA was marked with accomplishments and initiatives. We were able to attract and publish some very fine numismatic articles from our membership and hobby associates. Our 2010 Distinguished Lecturer Series event was a success. Our initiative to build and field the MSNA website is now an on-going and maturing project. We began a time-consuming, detailed inventory and organization of our significant Maryland token collection. Many of the ways and means of doing things such as publishing the Maryland Numismatist, record keeping, and mailing were upgraded or enhanced. We will continue all the above endeavors into 2011 with the goal of being recognized and known as an asset by our members, associates, and the numismatic community at large.

MSNA will have a website on the World-Wide-Web in 2011. At this time, our website (www.MDStateNumisAssn.org) contains a non-interactive webpage “placeholder.” Behind the scenes the designers are fashioning an attractive and functional website that will feature past issues of the Maryland Numismatist, member club information and forms, regional hobby news and events, convenience links to numismatic blogs, a store, user feedback comments, and more. I’ll keep you posted on when the website placeholder is replaced with the real McCoy.

P·N·G
Knowledge. Integrity. Responsibility.

I mentioned earlier the fine articles we were able to publish in the Maryland Numismatist. One of those articles, "Maryland Colonial Currency" (see the Spring 2010 – Volume 38 – No. 1 issue), was selected by our judges as the 2010 Best Article. The author, Scott Barman of Montgomery County Coin Club, won the $50 gift certificate. Congratulations to Scott and my many thanks to all those who submitted such fine reading. The 2011 Best Article contest begins with this issue. In closing, once the autumn leaves are all raked, please take a leisurely break from "minding your business" to read the Winter 2010 issue of the Maryland Numismatist.

Board Notes by Simcha Kuritzky, Treasurer and Editor

At the August meeting, the MSNA Board reviewed the successes of the last two years and decided to stay the course. There are five elements to our work now: sponsoring a competitive exhibit at a Whitman Show (next one is March 2011), sponsoring a talk by a distinguished scholar (Anthony J. Swiatek, 1997-99 President of the American Numismatic Association, is scheduled for June 2011), document and exhibit the John Henry collection that is in our custody, get the web site up and running, and fund our activities with a gold raffle.

Speaking of the raffle, the Board voted at the annual meeting to keep the same prizes next year for both the raffle and exhibit competition, despite higher gold prices. The exhibit agreement and application are on pages 23 and 24 of this journal. The exhibit prizes are a quarter ounce gold eagle, tenth ounce platinum eagle, and tenth ounce gold eagle. Even exhibitors who don't win will receive one ounce of silver. MSNA donated funds to the Association of Retarded Citizens, Children's Cancer Fund, and Gallagher Services. We are also donating about $50 worth of encased quarters and a set of 1988 MSNA bronze, silver-plated and silver medals to each of the 16 clubs that are in good standing and sold the raffle tickets we sent last year. The Board also approved buying a life membership in FUN, whose journal helps publicize our activities.

MSNA would like to act as a clearinghouse for member clubs, such as providing speakers or presentations (on DVD or PC), serving as a liaison with the ANA, or providing expertise or even funding for a specific project. Let us know how we can best serve you.

Early Baltimore Elongateds

by Russ Sears

About Elongated Coins

The making of elongated coins, primarily as souvenirs of various events, began in 1893 at the Columbian Exposition, Chicago World's Fair. The majority of elongateds have been made on United States cents. However, other denominations—even foreign coins and tokens—have been used as host coins. Early Baltimore elongateds on coins other than cents are very rare.

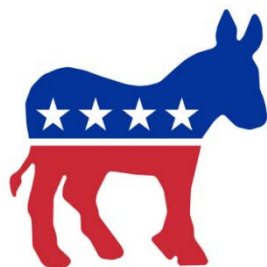

Early elongateds were rolled using a jeweler's machine, usually used to press metal to a desired thickness. Later machines were designed specifically for rolling coins. Some machines are manually powered, but others run on electricity, making life easier for the roller. Elongated coins displayed only plain letters and numbers until about 1901. At that time, die engravers began cutting very detailed steel dies which included designs such as buildings and people. Dies are engraved incuse so that the design comes out as a positive image, similar to the way coin dies are made. Coins are rolled between two steel dies, one of which is usually smooth. There have been pieces rolled using two engraved dies resulting in an image on both sides. The only early Baltimore elongated coin with a design on both sides is from Stewart & Company.

The catalog for these treasures is Yesterday's Elongateds by Lee Martin and Dottie Dow, first published in 1981 with a second printing in 2004. Catalog numbers refer to the Martin-Dow numbers. The four different elongateds featured in this article are the only Maryland pieces listed in the Martin-Dow book. Dow's earlier catalog The Elongated Collector, published in 1965, only lists the first three elongateds.

Democratic National Convention 1912 (MD.bal-1)

In 1912, the Democratic Party met from June 25 to July 2, 1912 at the Fifth Regiment Armory to select their candidate for President of the United States. Although Champ Clark was the leading contender going into the convention, the selection was Woodrow Wilson. Wilson served as the President of Princeton University and as the Governor of New Jersey. On a local note, he received his PhD at Johns Hopkins University in 1886. He went on to win the presidency that year and served two full terms, though he was incapacitated by a stroke in 1919. The elongated shows a donkey standing right. The inscription at top is NAT. DEMOCRATIC CON. JUNE 25 * and at bottom is BALTIMORE, MD. 1912 *.

Knights of Pythias Convention 1913 (MD.bal-2)

The Knights of Pythias was founded as a fraternal organization in Washington, D.C. in 1864. Its name was taken from an 1821 play by Irish poet John Banim about the youths Damon and Pythias who were such loyal friends, they were willing to die for each other. The society's motto is "Friendship, Charity and Benevolence" (F C B). More than 1000 members camped in the Westport area, many of whom participated in a grand parade. Newspaper reports of this convention refer to the members as colored Knights of Pythias, though they are racially integrated (today most members are white). At the suggestion of President Lincoln, the Order of Knights of Pythias became the first American order ever chartered by an act of the United States Congress. The elongated shows crossed halberds behind a shield topped by a knight's helmet. It is divided in three sections, each with their own letter: F C B. Although the cent design does not indicate this, the F is on a dark blue background, C on yellow, and B on red. Above is K. OF P. CONVENTION around the top and 1913 over the shield. A ribbon below the shield has the word KNIGHTS on the left, OF below, and PYTHIAS on the right. Below is LUCKY CENT and BALTIMORE, MA. [sic].

Fraternal Order of Eagles Convention 1913 (MD.bal-3)

Originally called the Order of Good Things, the Fraternal Order of Eagles was founded by six theatre owners in Seattle, Washington in 1898. Their purpose is to "unite fraternally in the spirit of liberty, truth, justice and equality, to make human life more desirable by lessening its ills, and by promoting peace, prosperity, gladness and hope". They currently have over a million men and women members throughout the United States and Canada. The Fraternal Order of Eagles takes credit for the establishment of Mothers Day as a national holiday (1904), providing needed political support for the passage of Social Security (1935), and distributing Ten Commandments plaques for public display (starting in 1955). The cent shows an eagle with spread wings standing in front of a downward-pointing horseshoe dividing the date 1913. Above is F.O.E. CONVENTION and below is BALTIMORE • MARYLAND.

Stewart & Co. – Pure Food Market (MD.bal-4)

In 1901, when Louis Stewart purchased the Posner's Department Store building on the northeast corner of Howard and Lexington Streets, he named his store Stewart & Co. The name was later changed to Stewart's.

In 1978, the store was closed as a result of the deterioration of the downtown Baltimore shopping district. We believe this elongated to have been issued around the time of the opening of the store. The obverse has STEWART & CO. across the center and PURE FOOD MARKET above, BALTIMORE MD. below. The reverse has five lines: ARMOUR & COMPANY / • DAINTY • / CANNED MEATS / • DELICIOUS • / CHICAGO. Armour and Company was founded in Chicago in 1867. They issued a number of elongated cents at the turn of the previous century, including several for the 1901 Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo, New York (the reverse of NY.pae-11b is almost identical to the reverse of this Baltimore piece).

Advertisement from the 1920 Polk & Co. Baltimore City Directory courtesy of www.archive.org

Conclusion

Only four elongated types were issued in Maryland before World War One, and you'd be lucky to find any in the marketplace. The Stewart & Co. piece is especially rare, even though the catalog does not indicate this.

Religious Tolerance & Persecution in Maryland

by Simcha Kuritzky, NLG

The two historical trends that dominated Europe in the 1600s were colonization and religious strife. Not only did Catholic and Protestant countries war on each other, they attacked their own citizens who were of the faith out of favor. This was a major element in the English Civil War (1641-52), and it spilled over into the English colonies as well.

Charles I granted Cecil Calvert a charter to become Lord Proprietor of a new colony on the Chesapeake Bay. His father had reverted to his childhood faith Catholicism and Maryland was to be a haven for persecuted English Catholics. In 1634, his brother Leonard founded St. Mary's City as the capital. Most of the colonists, however, were Protestant, which lay the foundations of future strife. Numerous conflicts with other colonists marked Maryland's first few decades. However, in 1649, the Puritan-dominated legislature worked with the Catholic minority to pass the Act Concerning Religion. Although often touted as the first attempt at religious freedom in the New World, it was neither first nor such an attempt. In 1647, Rhode Island had declared that "all men may walk as their consciences persuaded them, without molestation—everyone in the name of his God." The Maryland legislation was merely an attempt to avoid forcing Protestants to be ruled by "Popery" or Catholics to submit to the Church of England. It included stiff penalties for heresy.

In 1654, the Puritan Commissioners of the Colony seized control from the Lord Proprietor. They expelled all Catholics from the Commission, using as an excuse that they had sided against Parliament in the Civil War. Several Catholics were murdered and their property plundered. The practice of Catholicism was outlawed. This state of affairs lasted until 1658 when England restored Lord Baltimore as the Proprietor. The Act of Toleration was reinstituted, only to meet its first challenge.

Dr. Jacob Lumbrozo was one of Maryland's few medical practitioners. However, he was a Jew, and the Act Concerning Religion made denying Jesus' divinity a capital offense. To its credit, the Maryland government held off trying him until a way availed itself to free him while saving face: Dr. Lumbrozo was one of several prisoners granted amnesty on the occasion of Richard Cromwell's accession as Lord Protector of England. Even though Maryland law continued to list denial of Christianity as a capital offense for another century, no other Jews were arrested. It was about this time that Lord Baltimore issued his own coinage.

the Lord Baltimore shilling struck in England c. 1659*

The Restoration of the Monarchy immediately followed, and Charles II was as supportive of the Catholics in Maryland as was his father, Charles I. Politics quieted down and the colony prospered. But after William III and Mary took the English throne from James II in a bloodless coup in 1689, Protestants in Maryland took matters into their own hands and seized St. Mary's City. The new monarchs granted the Protestants' demands to depose Baltimore and make Maryland a Crown Colony, which meant all residents had to pay taxes to support the Church of England. The new government moved the capital to Annapolis in 1695. In 1704, "An Act to Prevent the Growth of Popery within this Province" closed all Catholic schools and churches in Maryland. Although the Act Concerning Religion had been repealed, legislation passed in 1715 and 1723 also made it a capital crime to deny Christianity and required a religious test for anyone holding public office. The situation did not improve until the Province of Maryland became a State.

In 1776, Maryland adopted a new constitution which permitted freedom of worship for all residents. Neither Catholics nor Jews had to worry about being jailed or worse for their religion. However, it retained the religious test, so that Catholics could be appointed or elected to public office but Jews and other non-Christians could not. The 1787 Northwest Ordinance and 1789 U.S. Constitution assured religious equality in federal positions and the new states. However, the U.S. Supreme Court was reluctant in those days to rule pre-existing laws unconstitutional. Meanwhile, Maryland's Jewish population grew.

In 1797, prominent Jewish residents petitioned the Maryland Assembly for equal civil rights. No action was taken. Similar petitions in 1802-4 were also rejected. By now, a number of Jews were active civically. Some Jews who had served bravely in the 1814 defense of Baltimore were allowed to serve in public office without swearing the required oaths. Finally the Jews managed to gain the support of legislator (and hence gentile) Thomas Kennedy, who championed the necessary legislation. By the 1820s, support for religious equality was a virtual requirement for anyone representing Baltimore, but assured defeat in most of the rest of Maryland. The "Jew Bill" actually passed in 1822, but (because it amended the state constitution) had to be voted in a second time in 1823 and then it was defeated. It passed again on the last day of session in 1825 (when many delegates were already in recess) and was confirmed in 1826. Solomon Etting and Jacob Cohen were immediately elected to the Baltimore City Council. However, the law allowed only Jews to substitute an affirmation in the belief in an afterlife for the usual belief in Jesus' divinity. It afforded no protection to anyone who was neither Jewish nor Christian. The state constitution was rewritten in 1867 to eliminate religious tests per se but still required a belief in God. This last inequality was overturned by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1961.

Local News

The 2010 MSNA raffle results were: the 1998 U.S. $10 quarter ounce gold eagle went to Patrick Francis Lapensee and a companion 1945 Mexico 2 peso restrike went to the Washington Numismatic Society who sold the ticket. The 1912 British sovereign went to Ken Randolph. The 1999 U.S. $5 tenth-ounce eagle went to Brent Bowman. The 2005W U.S. silver proof-69 DCAM eagle went to the Salisbury Coin Club.

MSNA Past President Thomas Palmer published an article in the September, 2010 edition of The Celator on identifying the undertype coin for a Bar Kokhba zuz (coin of the Jewish Revolt 132-135 CE overstruck on a Roman denarius).

The Washington Numismatic Society will hold their semi-annual potluck dinner at the December 21 meeting at 7 PM, where Gary Slaght, engraver for the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, will give a talk. On January 18, Gerald Grzenda will speak on the SS John Barry, which sank in the Arabian Sea during World War Two while carrying 3 million American-minted Saudi one-riyal silver coins. On February 15, they will play a DVD of member Simcha Kuritzky's talk on Jewish Taxation at the Boston ANA convention. Meetings are held at 7:30 PM at Community of Christ Church, 3526 Massachusetts Avenue NW, Washington, DC. Enter through the alleyway in the back.

Simcha Kuritzky had an article published in The Elongated Collectors journal on a give-away elongated cent at a professional conference. It won the 2010 Editor's Award. His article on modern Zionism's history is appearing in four parts in the American Israel Numismatic Association's journal The Shekel, starting with the July-August, 2010 issue.

The Montgomery County Coin Club will hold their annual donated auction to benefit the Silver Spring Boys and Girls Club on December 14 7:15 PM at the Schweinhaut Senior Citizens Center at 1000 Forest Glen Road near Georgia Avenue and the DC Beltway. MCCC members donated common foreign coins for Financial Literacy Day on November 19 at the Stephen Decatur Middle School in Clinton, Maryland. This event was sponsored by Operation HOPE and the Women in Housing & Finance Foundation and taught sixth, seventh and eighth graders about money, banking, checking accounts, credit cards, and investing. The foreign coins added historical and fun dimensions to the learning experience and served as a reward to the children.

All four incumbent officers were re-elected (no surprise there, as they were all uncontested). This is the second year for Jack Schadeegg as President, so he will not be running again next year. Below on the left are Simcha Kuritzky, Treasurer, Jack Schadeegg, President, and Bryce Doxzon, Secretary.

Q. David Bowers (above right) spoke on the history of the American Numismatic Association at the Whitman Baltimore Expo on November 5. He started with the complex relationship between The Numismatist journal and the ANA, the growth in collecting popularity in the 1930s, his start as a dealer in the 1950s, and the relationship between the ANA and the PNG. About 30 people attended. Stack's sponsored the talk and offered a free on-line ANA membership to everyone who attended.

Part Eight: The Ushers Medals

by Simcha Kuritzky, NLG

The Great Depression gave us the modern zodiac medal. Perhaps people felt there was so little luck to go around that they resorted to buying small pocket pieces; maybe the medal manufacturers decided business was slow enough it was worth minting medals to be sold for a quarter or half dollar a piece. Whatever the reason, two popular zodiac series both have a 1936 copyright date. This time, I will discuss the medals issued by the magician Ushers of Venice Beach (next to Los Angeles), California. Next time, I will discuss Zolar's Lucky Buddha medals.

There are a number of people who collect magicians' memorabilia, and some of it gets quite pricey. At the ANA convention in LA, I met some people who specialize in The Ushers medals. One told me that the medals were issued in brass, bronze, or gilded brass, though it is difficult to tell the difference. He also verified the Gemini and Virgo medals are the scarcest. Both of these are Mercury signs, and Mercury is associated with logic and rational thinking. When people ask me if I believe in astrology, I like to tell them that, as a Virgo, I'm too rational to believe in it. However, either we Virgos and our cousins the Geminis believe that, or the medal producers believe it, because the Ushers aren't the only medal sets where Virgo and Gemini are the scarcest.

Each 25.9mm, 7 gram medal has a depiction of one zodiac sign on the obverse. All the obverses have the lucky numbers at top and the lucky day at bottom. The sign dominates the obverse with a shooting star above. The star is a hollow six-pointed star with the zodiac's sigil inside, and the name in large letters in the comet's tail. Somewhere near the sign is the sigil of the associated planet. These came out the year Pluto was discovered, so while they include the new planets Uranus and Neptune, they don't include Pluto. The medals are unusual in that they don't list the dates of the zodiac sign.

I have only found one variety, which is another way of saying that almost all of the obverses are the same for each sign, even when mated with different reverses. The only variety is with Gemini, where one has an incomplete Mercury sigil and portrait of the twin boys (the Dioscuri).

Zodiac Sign	Planet	Lucky Day	Lucky Numbers
♈ Aries	♂ Mars	Tuesday	2 – 1 – 7 – 6
♉ Taurus	♀ Venus	Friday	2 – 7 – 0 – 9
♊ Gemini	☿ Mercury	Wednesday	8 – 3 – 4 – 7
♋ Cancer	☾ Moon	Monday	8 – 9 – 3 – 2
♌ Leo	☼ Sun	Sunday	2 – 7 – 9 – 5
♍ Virgo	☿ Mercury	Wednesday	7 – 8 – 4 – 3
♎ Libra	♀ Venus	Friday	6 – 9 – 7
♏ Scorpio	♂ Mars	Tuesday	3 – 5 – 7 – 8
♐ Sagittarius	♃ Jupiter	Thursday	1 – 6 – 9 – 8
♑ Capricorn	♄ Saturn	Saturday	6 – 9 – 8 – 2
♒ Aquarius	♅ Uranus	Wednesday	3 – 4 – 8
♓ Pisces	♆ Neptune	Friday	2 – 8 – 5 – 4

The planets match the ancient planetary signs, but I don't know why they assigned Wednesday to Uranus (usually Aquarius is Saturn and Saturday) and Friday to Neptune (usually Pisces is Jupiter and Thursday). The lucky numbers also seem to have no rhyme or reason. They often are not in sequential order. The number 8 appears for 8 different signs and 7 for 6, while 0 appears only once and 1 twice. Most signs have four lucky digits but three signs have only three. All of Aquarius' lucky digits are also lucky for Gemini and Virgo, but that may be because they all have Wednesday as their lucky day. In any event, I've yet to figure out how anyone assigns lucky digits to the different zodiac signs.

The reverses all have a ringed planet in the center of a circle of all 12 zodiac sigils. There are four stars over the planet, one larger than the rest. Around the edge facing away from the center is * WEALTH * HEALTH * HAPPINESS *. I've found three different reverses and one variety. What I assume is the earliest version has no writing on the planet. A small COPYRIGHT 1936 BY appears above and THE USHERS - VENICE CALIF appears below. At the very top is GOOD LUCK facing towards the center. The second type moves the copyright inscription to below the planet and puts THE USHERS in large letters over the planet and VENICE, CAL. on the ring. The third type has WISHING YOU at top, and the ring's inscription is VENICE CALIF. A copyright symbol © appears below the planet with no date or words, along with clouds and 2 stars. Although no longer in production, the Ushers medals are still one of the more popular zodiac series.

The obverse variety has an incomplete Mercury sign and the twins' bodies fade well above the inner circle (at left), which I assume is the earlier version.

The reverse variety is of the second type. One has the V of VENICE to the right of the C in COPYRIGHT while the other is to the left.
